Activity Report

➤ Highlights and Impact

- Students actively engaged in dance workshop and demonstrated enthusiasm in learning new moves.
- Group performances fostered teamwork and boosted student confidence.
- The reflective discussion revealed that most students felt a sense of relief, joy, and relaxation after participating.
- Use of music and dance successfully created a vibrant and stress-free environment, promoting mental well-being.
- Participants expressed appreciation for combining art with mental health awareness.

➤ Feedback Summary

- 90% of students felt that the activity helped reduce their stress and anxiety.
- 85% enjoyed the dance workshop and group performances.
- 88% agreed that musical dance is an effective tool for emotional expression and social bonding.
- Many students suggested holding similar events regularly for holistic mental health support.

➤ Challenges Faced

- Initial hesitation from some students unfamiliar with dance activities.
- Limited time for rehearsals due to academic schedules.
- Technical glitches with sound system briefly delayed one performance.

➤ Recommendations for Future Events

- Increase the frequency of musical and artistic workshops to support ongoing mental wellness.
- Incorporate other art forms such as drama, painting, and music therapy.
- Provide extended rehearsal time for larger groups.
- Ensure technical support staff are present for smooth audio-visual management.
- Encourage wider student participation through targeted promotions.

➤ Conclusion

The UMEDZEP Musical Dance Awareness event successfully utilized music and dance as powerful mediums to promote mental health awareness and emotional well-being among polytechnic students. The activity enhanced social bonding, self-expression, and stress relief, positively impacting students' overall mood and campus experience. The event's success lays a foundation for continuing artistic initiatives as part of holistic student support programs at KCES's College of Engineering and Management.
